

Exam #10 , add the following to solution #42:

Statement D is true.

PLS is not a generalization of PCR. While Principal component analysis determines the directions that best explain the predictors, the Partial Least Squares attempts to find directions that help explain both the response and the predictors. Thus Statement E is not true.